

JOIN US FOR

Operation Resilient Tree Data Collection

A citizen science project
in your community

Saturday, April 22, 8:30am-11am
Ruth Hardy Park (700 E Tamarisk Rd, Palm Springs)

ATTEND as a Volunteer and collect scientific data on urban trees

OR attend as an Earthwatch Certified Citizen Scientist:

1) COMPLETE the online training and exam at
earthwatch.urbanresiliency.org/resources/training

2) TEST your skills at this event and earn your certificate!

RSVP to save your spot
and receive additional event information!

<https://tinyurl.com/operationrt>

ABOUT

This free, half-day event trains volunteers to identify trees and collect data to understand how urban trees grow and provide cooling benefits across Southern California. The data you collect will be used by scientists at the University of California, Riverside to determine the water usage and cooling benefits of common urban tree species in the region.

CONTACT US

Please email
eperry@earthwatch.org
or visit
earthwatch.urbanresiliency.org
if you have any additional questions about this event.